liminal love spaces by Aeva Milos

liminal love spaces seeks' to celebrate the beauty of individuality, and through abstract portraiture, explore how home has constantly shifting definitions, finding meaning only through our own individual interpretations and experiences. Volunteers were prompted to use their body as the canvas to create a fascinating and intimate visual display of who they are and what their home looks like. As poet Rainer Maria Rilke once said: "your house is the last before the infinite, whoever you are". We hope you linger within the space, within the home, and perhaps find something of yourself within these (virtual) four walls
