

MUDFEST DIGITAL

Map of Home by Weiting Chen

The year of 2020 is a special year for many people. The year of the start of the COVID-19 impacted the way I attending classes, having food and socializing. I spent the most of the time in my home last year. Staying home was not only good for public health and safety during that difficult time, but also giving me a new way to look at the small scale environment around me. I enjoyed the life at home a lot and I cherished all the memories. For Mudfest 2021, I want to share my happiness to other people, especially to those who must stay at home due to many reasons. Even the place I lived in was very small, when I see it as a town or a city and treat every step as a small trip, daily routines will become more interesting. I want to share the way I look at my home and hope more people can see the hidden interesting things in daily life. The main drawing is the map of my home. Rather than a scaled drawing, it is more like a diagrammatic summary of the trace my roommates and I left at home. Masks and sanitisers that we stored in the living room, games and toys that we played together, the shower room that I used for vocal exercises... Is there any place in the map that you want to visit?
